

Energy Institute Publication Review and Release Policy

The Energy Institute at The University of Texas at Austin maintains the highest possible standards regarding the design, management, and review of its research projects to ensure the quality and integrity of its work prior to public release.

All studies, reports, and other research materials issued by the Institute undergo a thorough and rigorous internal review. In addition, the Institute seeks input from a variety of external sources, including individuals and organizations representing diverse perspectives and viewpoints.

When submitting white papers, reports, and other materials for publication in scientific or professional journals, the Institute follows all established procedures and protocols.

The Institute is committed to transparency and disclosure of all potential conflicts of interest. Contributing authors to research projects initiated by the Institute are required to abide by the disclosure policies of The University of Texas at Austin and file required financial disclosure forms with the university.
