

Open Education Community of Practice

Open educational resources – free teaching and learning materials made available for revision and reuse under open licenses – are reinventing how educators present and how learners digest information.

Explore, experiment, and create with fellow UT faculty and staff as we engage with principles of open pedagogy and the creation and use of open educational resources in a flexible co-working environment. This is a space to brainstorm, ask questions, consult with specialists, and collaborate across organizational and disciplinary silos.

Join us as we build a vibrant community of open education practitioners!
