Social and Economic Inequality in Brazil
Belo Horizonte, Brazil

Maymester Faculty-Led Study Abroad
May 29 – June 29, 2017
About the program
This Maymester will allow students to deepen their understanding of social and economic justice while exploring the historical roots of social and economic inequality in Brazil. Students will be immersed in Brazilian culture while living in the thriving metropolis of Belo Horizonte. The course will also examine public social policies in Brazil, including affirmative action and conditional cash transfers. Students will also have the opportunity to gain first-hand experience through visits to social service agencies and favela neighborhoods.

Application deadline: November 1, 2016.

Courses
SOC 321K/ LAS 325 – Social and Economic Inequality in Brazil

Info Sessions
Thursday, Oct 6 • 12:00-1:00pm CLA 2.706
Tuesday, October 11 • 3:00-4:00pm CLA 1.302D
Tuesday, October 18 • 5:00-6:00pm CLA 2.706

Dr. Leticia Marteleto
Dr. Leticia Marteleto is an Associate Professor of Sociology who specializes in the influence of social context on educational inequality in Brazil and in South Africa.

Learn more: world.utexas.edu

The University of Texas at Austin
International Office