

Engineering Chamber Orchestra

at The University of Texas at Austin

Purpose

Engineering Chamber Orchestra (EChO) is an organization that brings together students, faculty, and staff from all over the University to cultivate a common passion: music. Our main purpose is to give musicians the opportunity to form small chamber ensembles in order to promote music within the greater Austin community. We host concerts at the end of each semester with music ranging from smooth jazz to Mozart piano duets to Spanish flamenco guitar — all performed by our members. In addition, we provide musical services, or “gigs,” as entertainment for corporate and organization events. Please refer to our website at <https://sites.utexas.edu/echo/> for more information.

Corporate Opportunities

Concert Series

Dates: December 2019, May 2020

Anticipated Costs: $1300 per semester

At the end of every semester, EChO hosts a concert series with performances from small ensembles and a full orchestra. Every EChO concert is free to the public, and students, friends, and family members are encouraged to attend. Corporate partners are recognized in concert posters, programs, and website. We announce our partners at each concert, and representatives are welcome to attend.

Gigs

Dates: Flexible

Anticipated Costs: Varied

EChO will be honored to provide entertainment for any corporate event near the university. From our diverse and talented pool of musicians, we will assemble an ensemble suitable for the event. Our ensembles have previously performed in receptions and banquets held by the Engineering Advisory Board, the Engineering Honors Program, and various departments within the University. With pieces such as Pachelbel's Canon in D and Vivaldi's Four Seasons, our music will provide serene entertainment to complement any professional event.

Socials

Dates: Flexible

Anticipated Costs: $300

EChO social events vary from Austin Symphony Orchestra concerts to ice skating to kayaking. Corporate partners will be recognized on all advertising for the event. Representatives are welcome to attend and interact with students in a relaxed environment.

Banquet

Dates: December 2019, May 2020

Anticipated Costs: $500

The end-of-semester banquet is a banquet that follows the concert series that celebrates the members' achievements, and it's also a chance for us to appreciate our senior members after their last concert and allows all EChO members to socialize before finals start. Corporations are welcome to send representatives to present and speak with members in a more informal setting.
