Professional Development: The International Journal of Continuing Social Work Education is a refereed journal concerned with publishing scholarly and relevant articles on continuing education, professional development, and training in the field of social welfare. The aims of the journal are to advance the science of professional development and continuing social work education, to foster understanding among educators, practitioners, and researchers, and to promote discussion that represents a broad spectrum of interests in the field. The opinions expressed in this journal are solely those of the contributors and do not necessarily reflect the policy positions of The University of Texas at Austin's School of Social Work or its Center for Social and Behavioral Research.

Professional Development: The International Journal of Continuing Social Work Education is published two times a year (Spring and Winter) by the Center for Social and Behavioral Research at 1923 San Jacinto, D3500 Austin, TX 78712. Our website at www.profdevjournal.org contains additional information regarding submission of publications and subscriptions.

Social Work and Disability

This Edition reflects the international dimensions of our Journal as well as the challenge in nation after nation to provide services to ensure the full potential of all citizens. Recent data from sources such as the Federal Reserve document the failure in the United States in decreasing equity among the American population including the role of the Federal government in subsidizing the very wealthy. In measure after measure from the credit seizure in 2008 to the lack of progress for almost all Americans since 2010, the United States falls behind the advanced nations of the world. Social Work clearly has its work cut out for the coming years of this decade in addressing issues surrounding disability.
