"I can't really predict the future per se, at some point I will have to think about money and where to live. I don't want to burden my parents with any more years of student loans than is needed. Perhaps when I'm able to sustain myself, I will consider achieving the level of education I want."

"Some of the barriers, include my own fear as well as self-doubt. Furthermore, the amount of years that it takes to complete a Doctorate degree is also something to consider. Lastly, it is an expensive degree, and I am afraid I will not be ready or good enough for it.?"

"Although my answers are the same, current situations has let me to believe that I may not be able to achieve this. My main concerns derive of financial changes that jeopardize being able to afford the costs of completing my degree. I answered the same because I want to believe I can still do it regardless."
