Creator Sketch

Dr. Emmett L. Bennett, Jr. (July 12, 1918 – December 15, 2011) was one of the world's most distinguished and reputable Classics scholars and the founding father of the study of Mycenaean scripts. His systematic editing of three primary inscriptions and meticulous analysis of the pre-alphabetic syllabic script Linear B was instrumental in its decipherment as representing an early form of ancient Greek by British scholar Michael Ventris in 1952.

Bennett was born in Minnesota in 1918 and spent most of his earlier years in Ohio. He earned his Bachelor's degree in Classics from McMicken College of Arts and Sciences, University of Cincinnati, in 1939, followed by his Master's degree in 1941. While earning his Ph.D. at McMicken, Bennett worked with noted American archaeologist Carl Blegen (1887-1971), whose 1939 discovery of hundreds of Linear B tablets in Pylos, Greece, became the focus of Bennett's life work.

From 1942 to 1945, Bennett served as a cryptanalyst for the War Department in Washington, D.C.; upon completion of his service, Bennett returned to the University of Cincinnati to complete his Ph.D., which he earned in 1947. That same year Bennett obtained a teaching position at Yale, which was later followed by a position at the University of Texas in 1958. In 1959 Bennett joined the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, where he remained until his retirement in 1988.

Bennett was Professor Emeritus of the Department of Classics of the University of Wisconsin, and from 1978 until 1988 he held the Moses Slaughter Professorship. Even after his retirement, Bennett remained engaged in the field, serving as a visiting scholar to many schools and programs, including Bryn Mawr, the University of Cincinnati, the University of Texas at Austin's Program of Aegean Scripts and Prehistory, and institutions in Rome and Athens. Bennett resided in Madison, Wisconsin.

Bennett's studies of Linear B were seminal; his work founded a new subfield of classical studies, the study of Mycenaean scripts. Although Bennett spent just three weeks in the archaeological field, his work on the Pylos tablets proved to be invaluable. His first publication, on the Minoan fractional system, published in the American Journal of Archaeology in 1950, encouraged the studies of Michael Ventris and continues to be considered an authoritative work to this day. Bennett's analysis and classification system of the Linear B script greatly influenced Ventris' progress, who soon after deciphered the script in 1952. Even after the decipherment, only minor changes to Bennett's original classification system needed to be made.

Subsequent works of particular note include his 1959 publication on the handwriting styles and writing characteristics of the Pylos scribes, and the publication of the Pylos texts in standardized and textual transcriptions.

Bennett was first and foremost a passionate scholar. His extraordinary precision and attention to detail are well illustrated by the numerous grids, graphs, and statistical calculations he completed in his work on Linear B. He was committed to research and accuracy, preferring to wait to endorse theories until close to irrefutable evidence had been presented.

Bennett's roles also included those of a mentor, encourager and collaborator, and he showed a genuine respect for others and their theories. As a reputable scholar in the field, Bennett received correspondence from colleagues and amateurs alike, and he always took the time to respond to each with an equal amount of consideration. Prior to the decipherment, Bennett corresponded and shared information with Alice Elizabeth Kober. During the same period and in the two years preceding the decipherment of Linear B, Bennett collaborated closely with Michael Ventris. For years afterwards he remained close to scholars like John Chadwick and Carl Blegen on both a professional and social level. Bennett was well-liked and greatly respected by his students, as attested by his continued close relationships and rich correspondence with many of these individuals, such as Thomas G. Palaima of the Program of Aegean Scripts and Prehistory, as they advanced into the professional field themselves.

Despite Bennett's commitment to serious scholarship, he certainly had an appreciation for the lighter side. In a field where proposed decipherments were often less than accurate, Bennett, at times with Chadwick as his foil, created several of his own parody translations, circulated around the field under a pseudonym. He collected cartoons and comics that related to Linear B and its decipherment, and had a quick wit that is evident in many of his letters.

Bennett's remarkable career includes authorship of over 60 publications, including 10 books. His biography was published in 1988 in Texts, Tablets and Scribes, a volume edited in his honor. Bennett founded the publication Nestor in 1957, an international bibliography of Aegean studies, Homeric society, Indo-European linguistics, and related fields that he ran on his own for 20 years (1957-1977). Nestor has been published by the Department of Classics at the University of Cincinnati since 1995 and today is distributed in 30 countries worldwide. Bennett also served several years on the editorial board of Kadmos, a journal relating to pre-Greek and early Greek epigraphy.

Bennett was the recipient of many honors and awards, including numerous scholarships, two Fulbright Fellowships and a Guggenheim Fellowship. He was an honorary member and honorary councilor of the Archaeological Society of Athens, Greece's most distinguished archaeological organization, and he remained one of only a dozen foreign scholars to receive this honor. In 1991, Bennett received the Gold Cross of the Order of Honor, the highest award that the Greek government can present to a foreigner.

Scope and Content of the Records

The Emmett L. Bennett, Jr. Offprint Collection of the Program of Aegean Scripts and Prehistory (2,500 items) is comprised of the research material, publications, manuscripts, correspondence, and photographic material created by many Mycenaean scholars and sent by them to Bennett in the course of his Editorship of the journal Nestor, which he founded in 1957. The collection consists of two groups: Bennett Offprint Collection, up to 1995; and Bennett Offprint Collection, 1995-2011. The bulk of the material includes items relating to the study of Mycenae and Linear B, and Bennett's correspondence with other scholars and colleagues in the Classical Studies field.

The first record group, Bennett Offprint Collection, up to 1995 (1,202 of 2,927 items housed together), contains the set of publication offprints that Bennett received and collected until the year 1995, largely in his capacity as Founding Editor of Nestor. This record group was inventoried by PASP graduate students in 1995 in a Mac database, and converted to Excel format in 2015. Included in their inventory are Author, Title, Journal, Volume/Nr, Pages, Plates/Maps, Subject, Subsubject, Cross(-reference), and Collection. Note that the container listing below and the accompanying Excel inventory also include the contents of the adjacent Cyprus, T.B.L. Webster (acquired summer 1990), and T.G. Palaima offprint collections, as all were inventoried simultaneously in 1995 (in 2015, the archivist filled in "Bennett" for their 1,202 entries that had a blank Collection field).

The second record group, Bennett Offprint Collection, 1995-2011 (ca. 1,263 items), contains the second set of publications that Bennett received and collected from 1995 until his passing in 2011. It is comprised of five subgroups arranged in their original alphabetical order with folders for individual authors preceding folders for authors who share the same last initial. This record group was inventoried in 2013-2015 without the use of Greek characters.

The first subgroup consists of folders of single authors (898 items) whose offprints Bennett collected from 1995-2011. Included in the inventory are Author: Lastname, Firstname, Title of Article, Journal, Volume & Pages, Date of Publication, Collection, Subject, If Multiple Copies.

The second subgroup consists of folders of authors who share the same last initial (mixed), some of which also have their own individual folder (269 items). Included in the inventory are Author: Lastname, Firstname, Title of Article, Journal, Volume & Pages, Date of Publication, Collection, Subject, If Multiple Copies.

The third subgroup consists of offprints of Bennett's own publications (28 items) from 1951 to 1999. Included in the inventory are Author: Lastname, Firstname, Title of Article, Journal, Volume & Pages, Date of Publication, Collection, Subject, If Multiple Copies.

The fourth subgroup consists of a small collection of Emmett L. Bennett, Jr. Papers compiled over the 1995 to 2011 period (50 folders). They fill a gray filing cabinet drawer and have been listed at the folder level.

The fifth subgroup consists of materials from a box given by Dr. Bennett to Dr. Palaima ca. 2004 which were moved from Madison, Wisc. to Austin, Tex. (15 folders). The contents of each folder are described.

Provenance

The materials were donated by Emmett L. Bennett, Jr. to PASP under the custody of Dr. Thomas G. Palaima.
